TWO MORMAN "MISSIONARIES."

Distributing Their Hand Bills In This Section.

A dispatch from Barrington says: Much interest has been aroused in this section by the presence of two Mormon elders who have been preaching the doctrines of their church in the various towns in this vicinity and attempting to gather converts to their faith. For two weeks they have been here, moving about from village to village, taking their meals with anyone charitable enough to feed them, sleeping where they can and preaching where the opportunity presents itself. They have no difficulty in getting their living, for the people of Barrington and surrounding towns are hospitable, and though the missionaries, as they style themselves, pay nothing for food and lodging, every night finds them comfortably housed.

It is harder, however, for them to find places in which to preach. Lee, Barrington, Northwood, Strafford and the other towns about here, are Christian communities, and show hospitality to strangers within their gates, but cannot conscientiously allow their churches and schoolhouses to be used for preaching the doctrines of a church known to countenance, if it does not advocate, certain practices which are regarded immoral by the so-called orthodox Christians. For this reason the two elders have been obliged for the most part to hold their meetings in private houses, occasionally prevailing upon the owners of some hall or lodge room to give them the use of it for an evening.

Meetings which they have held have been well attended in most cases, curiosity being the motive which is given by those who go to hear them, but those who go to hear something sensational are invariably disappointed. In public they say nothing about their peculiar belief in regard to the marriage tie, or ties, and their talk is much the some as that of any other minister. In referring to the Mormon religion they seem to be more desirous of creating a good impression of their church than of making converts.

In private conversation it is different. They are both good talkers, argue convincingly, and are said to have made a few converts, although only one person could be found who would admit being influenced by their reasoning.

They take no collections at their meetings, carry no money and rely upon the charity of those with whom they come in contact for the necessaries of life. In speaking of the Congressman Roberts affair, one of them said: "It is in the hands of God."

Elder Rasmussen gives Nova Scotia as his birthplace, while Elder Hudson says that he was born in Utah, of Mormon parents.

FIREWORKS AT SEA POINT.

H. H. Tilton & Co. of Boston, the widely known conductors of pyrotechnical exhibits, have been engaged by Supt. Meloon of the Portsmouth, Kittery & York electric railway to set off a grand display of fireworks at Sea Point next Thursday evening.

There will be rockets galore, roubillions, mines, batteries, saucissions, bombs, mammoth meteors, water snakes, fountains, floating lights and lots of other varieties, besides three brilliant set pieces: "The Star of Portsmouth," comic dancing jack and wheel of magic.

The fireworks and set pieces will be shipped from the company's manufactories at Auburndale, Mass., tomorrow. Arrangements are already being perfected at the Point for their reception

Special cars will be in service Thursday evening. Supt. Meloon is planning to have the exhibit interspersed with lively orchestral music.

SCENERY SPECTACLES.

The scenery spectacles or hunting glasses, as one wishes to call them, are indeed curious things. They are made up of a sort of a dark yellow glass in which one looks out of a small clear place, all around it being clear glass. Though the effect is for the ease of the eyes, the colors are brought out distinctly and everything takes on a brighter hue, that is at the same time easy to the eyes. The person wearing a pair of these glasses is a sight worth seeing for nothing but the pupil of the eye can be seen in looking at him and it is odd indeed. For a person troubled with the "blues," these would be good. They are used however, by people who wish to enjoy the landscapes, but who have weak eyes.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Since the Boston and Maine management instituted its vigorous crusade several months ago against those who try to steal rides or evade car fare, nearly a hundred men have been prosecuted on the Eastern division and as many more on the other divisions. It behooves hobos to have a ticket or the price nowadays when they board Pullman or accommodation. They'll find it rather hard to sneak through this city to Boston or Portland without settling. The B. & M. claims that these fellows have been a source of large loss to the corporation's income.

Undoubtedly, if the weather be good tomorrow, a large number of Portsmouth people will take advantage of the excursion to Hampton beach. That resort is squarely at the height of its prosperity now, booming as it never has before. Handy as it is to Portsmouth, however, in the matter of miles, none of us here can go there in the afternoon, have supper and an evening's outing, and get back at night. And all because Hampton depot is not on the time card of any east bound train after 6.16 p. m.

Hampton beach loses a lot of dollars through the season on account of this. If the Pullman would but make a stop at Hampton every evening during July and August, the beach would be opened up to the people of this city quite satisfactorily. Now the Pullman stops only to leave passengers from Boston or take on people going clear through to Portland. I wonder if the beach business men have ever brought this matter to the attention of the B. & M. management.

As the date of the Rochester fair approaches, there becomes apparent that wholesale advertising of the event which has made Cold Spring park the goal for thousands in southeastern New Hampshire every September since the fair association was formed. Liberal advertising, judiciously placed, has made the Rochester fair. There is a lesson in this for everybody who has a business which depends upon the great public for existence.

So the hurricane which was bowling wickedly up the coast toward us has gone broke in Florida somewhere. 'Tis just as well. We're having a lively enough summer without the visitation of any chimney-tossers or township-scatterers It is worthy of note that just two years ago we sent a storm of that kind down in that direction.

Idon't believe those Mormon elders and tract distributors will bag more than a thousand converts in Rockingham and Strafford counties. To put it abruptly, our level headed New Hampshire men to realize that it is so perplexing to get along comfortably with one sponse, that few of them will take chances on a whole household.

FOGG.

POLICE COURT.

At five o'clock Saturday afternoon John Rogers and Edward Rutledge were arraigned before Judge Emery charged with the larceny of a watch and pair of glasses. Both pleaded not guilty and waived the reading of the warrant. Rogers was bound over to the October term of supreme court and placed under $400 bonds. Rutledge asked for a continuance until this Monday morning and furnished sureties to the amount of $200, for his appearance. Page and Bartlett appeared for Rutledge.

Rutledge was arraigned again before Judge Emery at ten o'clock this forenoon. Attorney Bartlett conducted his defense, while City Solicitor Emery was counsel for the state.

Rutledge was subjected to a long and exhaustive cross-examination, and so were the several witnesses who testified in his behalf. Judge Emery decided that the evidence in rebuttal of the charge could not be relied upon and held Rutledge under bail of $800 for the higher court. The necessary bonds will probaby be secured this afternoon.

Two drunks were also brought before the judge. George Hector said not guilty and a continuance of his case was granted until 5 o'clock this afternoon, for the state to summon night patrolmen as witnesses.

Jim Coakley was fined ten dollars and costs of $6.13, which he will probably be unable to raise.

EXETER GIRL MISSING.

Chicago Police Looking For Her—Heiress To Millions.

Miss Bessie Colby, a beautiful girl of nineteen, whose home is at Exeter, has mysteriously disappeared in Chicago, and has probably lost a million dollar fortune that a relative intended to leave her. She disappeared last Friday and since then the police have vainly tried to find her. She was without money, friends or knowledge of the western city, and the anxiety of her relatives is intense.

She left the home of a relative, John A Colby, at Windsor park, Chicago, Friday morning, telling Mrs. Colby she would return in time to board the evening train for the east. To a domestic she said, "I am going down town, but I am not going to leave Chicago. I am going to seek employment." When night came a message was received, saying: "I am all right; I have secured employment. Don't worry."

Next morning Mr. Hermann, the advertising manager for McVicker's theater, called at Mr. Colby's business house and said Miss Colby had applied to the theater for admission to the dramatic profession. Mr. Hermann recognized her as a guileless girl and endeavored to dissuade her from her purpose She told him she desired to follow her own inclinations and make her own way in life. Mr. Hermann decided to restore her to her relatives. He made an appointment with her to meet the manager Saturday morning and assured her he would secure her relatives' consent to entering upon a stage life. He took her to the Clifton hotel and secured a room for her for the night.

At 10 o'clock Saturday morning Mr. Hermann and Mr. Colby were at the hotel. The clerk said the young woman had left but 10 minutes before. All Saturday Mr. Colby sat in the office of McVicker's theater waiting for the appearance of the young woman. At night it dawned upon him that she had eluded him. Then the police were taken into confidence.

The young woman was a stepdaughter of a brother of John A. Colby. Her mother has been dead for some years Her stepfather married and died, and his second wife took charge of the little girl and reared her. She was educated at Fryeburg academy, Me., and graduated June 20 last. She was the class poet.

Ever since graduation she has had a desire to go upon the stage. She was invited to visit Mr. Colby in Chicago, for he had provided for her four years' education at the academy, and from the first day of her arrival she talked about her consuming ambition. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Colby favored her ideas and arrangements were made to send her to her aunt, Mrs. Horace Johnson, at Burlington, Vt.

Mr. Colby is a millionaire, and his object in bringing the girl to Chicago from Exeter was to make her his heir, providing she came up to his expectations. She knew nothing of his intentions.

RUNNING TODAY.

The cars on the Middle street line of the electric road commenced running this morning. The first car out will leave the Boston & Maine station at 6:30 A. M., Market square at 6:35, and will arrive at the South street terminus, corner of Lafayette road and South street, at 6:45. Cars will run every half hour during the day and up to 10:30 P. M., the last car leaving the Boston & Maine station at that hour. The first car in will leave the South street terminus at 6:45 A M, and will arrive at Market square at 6:55 and at the Boston & Maine station at seven o'clock. The inward cars will run every half hour during the day up to 10:45 P. M., the last car arriving at Market square at 10:55 and from thence will go to the car barn via Islington street.

The main line and loop line schedules will remain substantially the same as heretofore. Superintendent Howard has endeavored to arrange a running schedule that will accommodate and please our citizens and we think it will prove in every way satisfactory.

LOCAL STORIES

"John," said a Portsmouth woman, cuddling up to him, for it was the 7th anniversary of their marriage, "what was the happiest moment of your life?"

"Ah, dear," he replied, "I remember it well. I shall never forget it. If I live to be a hundred years old that moment will always stand out as plainly as it does tonight."

She sighed and nestled a little closer, looking longingly up into his honest blue eyes. After a moment's silence she urged:

"Yes, but John, dearest, you haven't told me when it was."

"Oh," he answered, "I thought you had guessed it. It was when you told me you had decided to trim over one of your old hats so as to make it do for the winter."

Then the celebration of the 7th anniversary of their marriage became formal and uninteresting.

"I say," said a friend, the other day, to another, "you are an old hand at it. I have just got married, and don't understand much about the business. I should like to know whether a married man has any rights left when he takes a wife?"

"Rights? Yes, lots. He has a right to pay all the bills—"

"Stop, I mean this. Let me give you an instance. Every box, every chest of drawers and portmanteau, and, in fact, every available receptacle of every description, is stuffed full of my wife's property, and when I want to put away a few cuffs and collars—"

"Hold hard. I know what you mean. Listen, young man. If your bedroom were two hundred yards long, lined from the floor to the ceiling with shelves and you wanted a place to stow away a couple of shirts, you couldn't find a hook that wasn't full of hair pins, scent bottles, odd gloves, pieces of ribbon, odd feathers and artificial flowers, little bits of tape and buttons galore, with pins and needles thrown in, so just accept the inevitable. Wrap your personal property in an old newspaper parcel, and hide it under the bed."

'Bobby" Greenleaf, the star guard of the Newburyport high school football team, who is at Young's hotel, York beach, is making quite a waiter of himself. But his fellow chums tell a funny story about him. The other day Bobby had a blind man at his table. Bobby passed him the bill of fare and asked him what he would like. Now Bobby gets jollied.

Every bottle guaranteed, or price refunded.

GREENLAND.

GREENLAND, Aug. 14.

The Hamptons beat Newfields at a game of ball last Saturday afternoon at Hampton Beach by the score of 14 to 13. Haley was put in to bother the Hamptons but proved very easy mutton for them. They batted him out of the box in the third inning. Woods and Powers had a great day at the bat. Holmes pitched for Hampton and had to play a very uphill game. Glading took the place of Haley in the fourth and held the Hamptons down to three runs in the last six innings. The features of the game was the batting of Woods and Powers and a fast double play between Woods, Smith and Brackett.

It is most sincerely hoped that the fair spoken of by several of the Grangers will come to most speedy maturity for it would give Greenland one of the largest send offs it has had for many years.

Instead of a game for the Hamptons next Saturday the diamond will be occupied by the Hook and Ladder companies of Newburyport and Amesbury. A close and interesting game is looked forward to.

The Greenlands are expecting a game at the Farragut house some time this week.

Mrs. George Brackett is visiting relatives in York, Me.

NEWFIELDS.

NEWFIELDS, Aug. 14.

Hampton won the second game in the Hampton—Newfields series at the beach Saturday after a hard fought contest and a hair raising finish. Both teams were remarkably strong. The large crowd of spectators was quick to enter into the spirit of the game. Hampton trusted their battery work to the budding young amateurs Holmes and Wilbur while Brackett held down his customary bag in the right hand corner. The remainder of the team comprised Manager DeLancy of Hampton—George Woods, Smith and Powers of Portsmouth, Godfrey of Harvard and Perley Elliott the veteran player from Phillips Andover, making indeed a strong combination capable of coping with any amateur organization in the state.

Newfields, however, proved that their team was right in the same class.

Holmes' twisters were lined out for a total of 19 hits, but for one unfortunate inning, when Hampton hit for 9 hits, with a total of 16, yielding 9 runs, victory would have fallen to Newfields. After this inning, Haley, who had borne the brunt of the hitting, retired in favor of Glading, a left hander who is fast earning a reputation in the box—only three hits were made from his delivery. The losers, after taking a good lead at the start, played a commendable uphill game after Hampton's batting streak made a score of 11—4 against them. They all but won and as it was finished only one run to the bad 14—13.

Score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Hampton	0	2	9	0	0	0	3	0	*	—14
Newfields	2	1	1	3	1	0	0	5	0	—13

Batteries, Holmes and Wilbur, Haley Gladings and Otis; hits, Newfields 19; Hampton, 13.; errors, Newfields, 9; Hampton, 7; umpires, Fu bish and Downing.

WOMEN'S REALM

See This Flare.

This is the season of exaggeration in many things, and in none more than

Styles For the Fall.

According to the latest advices from abroad the principal and almost fashionable colors for fall wear will be light and will include many pastel shades. Despite a great many arguments to the contrary we still wear what Europe wears and take our cue to colors according to the standard set up by European fashion leaders, regardless of the fact that a great many of these colors are altogether unsuitable for the American climate or the average condition of things. The Parisian, London or Viennese woman of fashion who has always a carriage at her disposal can dress in as light a color as she prefers on her shopping expeditions, which are never undertaken in the same manner that we do ours. But the average American woman uses the cars and the streets on her shopping tours and could not possibly go in for light colors without soiling her gown hopelessly the very first time she wore it.

There are several new shades of gray, and among these there is a pearl gray that is particularly desirable, because it is neither so delicate as the one we have known not is it too deep to be classified among the pearl tints. Then there is an ash gray which, in my opinion, will be very popular, because it is not so light as to soil easily nor too dark to show the dust. It is really the color of the ashes of white ash coal. Then there is another shade which is almost a beige, a second which verges on the castor and three dark shades of bluish gray.

There are three new shades of violet and of these violettes de champes is the preferable one, being an intermediate tint not too light and not too trying. In order to suit all tastes there are two brilliant tints known as Solferino and Orchidee, which could be used to advantage as trimmings.

The pastel colors show about fifteen new shades, and of these a delicate lilac is known as Marian Delorme. Then there are two pretty bluish-gray tints and a handsome pink which has been named Mignard by the manufacturer. A color of positive beauty is a very light, delicate robin's-egg blue which would make up handsomely for dressy costumes.

The tan shades are of course always popular and fashionable as well as conservative. We never seem to tire of blue, and no matter how many new shades each season offers we always go in for all of them. The popular French blue returns to us this fall under the name of Hussard blue, and besides there are two beautiful new shades on the same color line known as St Jacquin and Ceramique. A very brilliant color that is almost a violet is called Victoria, but beware of it, it will not do at all for general wear, and can be adopted only by those fortunate women who have unlimited means to spend on dress.

Petrole is also a new shade of blue and Phedre, a purple shade, is also very handsome.

Several reddish-brown shades and also automobile-red are still holding their places abroad and can be had in six new shades, of which the two lightest are the most desirable.

On the whole the craze for violet has not abated, and it seems that our women have gone violet mad. Violets are more admired than the rose and violet perfume is the reigning fad.

It is said that the fall season of 1899 will be one of the best plaid seasons that we have had for several years. There seems to be a demand on the part of our women in general for extremes in materials. They want a tailor-made suit which is simplicity itself and then they wat something striking by way of change, and of course nothing will suit them but the plaid skirt, and the larger the plaid the better they like it.

Homespun and all mixed suitings will be worn a great deal, and black as well as a deep rich blue come first in the list of favorite colors for general wear.—Toilettes.

Her Gown as Man Sees It.

"Dorothy, I saw a beautiful gown in one of the shop windows to-day."

"What was it, Julius?"

"Well, it was that zigzaggy kind of cloth, and it had those braided things across the front and down the back, and some awful stylish pointed things on the skirt. I wish you would get one just like it."—Tit-Bits.

A striking feature of Havana is the absence of women in the streets. The fact has led to the town being spoken of as a "male city."

A CENTURY GOLF GIRL.

Golf, the Great Outdoor Fad of the Season.

Golfing is the outdoor fad of the season. The American girl says so, and her word is law nowadays. The craze for golf is widespread, and is not limited to the girls of any one grade of society.

The golfing girl expert who plays with a "St. Andrew swing," and owns more clubs than her caddy can carry, is wild with enthusiasm over the sport.

And the girl with two "bargain" clubs, who plays on a free course, is an equally loyal golfer.

The golfing girl's vocabulary is full of mysterious golfing lore, and her cheeks are full of golfing roses.

If she is a fashionable young person her golf clothes are so varied that they form in themselves an entire wardrobe and costs hundreds of dollars, and her golfing implements are countless.

But the golfing fad goes far beyond the limits of costume and clubs. The truly enthusiastic golfing girl this year is a golfer in every phase of her social life.

She gives golf luncheons with her club colors and with golfing souvenirs.

She designs the prettiest and daintiest golf favors for dances and card parties.

She has all the toilette articles which adorn her dressing table either fashioned after golfing implements or decorated with golf symbols.

The golfing girl's strictly golfing wardrobe shows much that is odd and new this year. Here are the novelties:

Quaint and airy sunbonnets fit for a fluffy picture girl.

Impracticable all white costumes.

Soft warm golf caps in the lightest and grightest of plaids.

And silk and loosely woven fine wool stockings with Scottish plaid tops in place of those of heavy wool.

The golfing girl wears her skirts a good two inches longer this year than last. Now they are just four inches from the ground. And whether of stout tweed or cool linen they are all made to fit with prevailing fashionable smoothness at the back and over the hips, though the yard sufficiently wide at the bottom to make tramping over the links a pleasure. Of jackets she owns an interesting collection, and her hats, shirt waists, belts and neckties specially designed for golf almost require cataloguing so great is their variety.

Hints For Comfort of Baby.

Baths, sleep and meals should be at certain hours and a form of regularity followed. However, there are times when rules fail and the general regulations cannot be carried out. When a baby is teething and fretful and really ailing he must be treated carefully and tenderly ,whatever happens.

Milk is the principal diet for all small children, and fruit is equally necessary. Ripe ,sweet fruits are perfectly safe. Unripe acid fruits will disturb the digestion whether milk is taken or not, but with milk, of course, the trouble is worse. The best time to give a child fruit is before breakfast and the midday meal.

There is no prettier way of making little frocks for a girl baby of two years than than the simple Mother Hubbard style in any of its variations. The main thing is to avoid overtrimming. The wide frills over the shoulders are no longer worn. Everything is tiny tucks, dainty lace and the smallest of ruffles.

It is not wisdom to keep a child awake in the hope that after once going to sleep he wil sleep sounder for several hours. Just as soon as a child is really tired he begins to fret. It takes time then for the nervous system to quiet down.

Housewives, Read These.

It ruins a piano to keep it standing in a draught.

Bruised cloves kept among fur frightens moths away.

Sponge black silk with spirits to revive it.

The busy housewife should get an hour's sleep in the afternoon.

A hot bath taken at night affords refreshing sleep.

When you want to cut whalebone warm it by the fire.

An egg beaten in milk is a good pick-me-up.

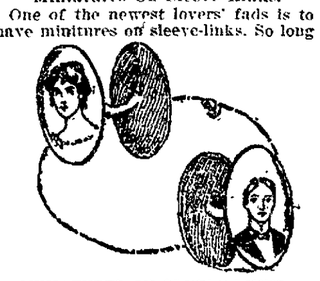

Lemons stowed separately in dry sand keep fresh.

Choosing a Flower Queen.

A pretty flower figure for the cotillon is the "Choosing of Proserpine." Sealed envelopes, containing cards, on one of which is inscribed "Queen of Flowers," are distributed to the women. The one who secures the queen card takes her seat in the centre of the room and all the couples dance around her, throwing the flowers which they carry into her lap as they dance past. At the end she ties them up into a bouquet and carries them off, having chosen her partner.

Miniatures On Sleeve Links.

One of the newest lovers' fads is to have minitures on sleeve-links. So long as he and she are bound by betrothal's chain and the figurative binding by golden links is an attractive idea.

Clothing of "Cast Off Ladies."

"Cast-off ladies' clothes bought and sold" reads the sign of a New York shop. This is not intended as a slur on the women who patronize the shop, but is merely the proprietor's peculiar method of expressing himself. So far from meaning any offense, he will assure you that his patrons are the best people in town.

RICE AT WEDDINGS.

UNIVERSAL CUSTOM WAS BORROWED FROM PECPLE OF CHINA.

They Tell a Story of How Peach-Blossom Used it to Great Effect at Her Wedding to the Famous Sorcerer Chao.

There are very few people who know that the custom of throwing rice at weddings is one borrowed from the Chinese, and fewer still who are cognizant of the superstitious legend that makes the throwing of rice considered lucky by the Celestials. This is the story as told by a Chinaman:

"Long ago, in the days of Shang dynasty, some fifteen hundred years before the birth of Christ, there lived in the province of Shansi, in China, a most famous sorcerer called Chao. It happened one day that a Mr. P'ang came to consult the oracle, and Chao, having divined by means of the tortoise diagram, informed the trembling P'ang that he had but six days to live.

"But P'ang was not satisfied, and, in order that there should be no mistake, to the fair Peachblossom he went, a young lady who had acquired some reputation as a sorceress, and to the tender feminine heart unfolded the story of his woe. Her divinations yielded the same result as Chao's—in six days P'ang would die—unless by the exercise of her magical powers she could avert the catastrophe.

"Her efforts were successful, and on the seventh day great was Chao's astonishment, and still greater his mortification and rage, when he met P'ang taking his evening stroll and learned that there lived a greater magician than he. The story would soon get about, and unless he could put an end to his fair rival's existence his reputation would be ruined.

"And this is how Chao plotted against the life of Peachblossom. He sent a go-between to Peachblossom's parents to inquire if their daughter was still unmarried, and, receiving a reply in the affirmative he befooled the simple parents into believing that he had a son who was seeking a wife, and ultimately he induced them to engage Peachblossom to him in marriage. The marriage cards were duly interchanged, but the crafty Chao had chosen the most unlucky day he could select for the wedding—the day when the 'Golden Pheasant' was in the ascendant. Surely, as the bride entered the red chair, the spirit bird would destroy her with powerful beak!

"But the wise Peachblossom knew all these things and feared not. 'I will go,' she said; 'I will fight and defeat him.' When the wedding morning she gave directions to have rice thrown out at the door, which the spirit bird, seeing, made haste to devour, and while his attention was thus occupied, Peachblossom stepped into the bridal chair and passed on her way unharmed."

And now the ingenuous reader knows why he throws rice after the bride; at least, that is how the Chinese explain the custom.

Poor Children of the Rich.

Childhood at Newport is in a bad way, to judge from the accounts of the boys' and girls' idea of amusement. "Their main diversion," says an observer, "consists of entertaining each other at dinner and luncheon, an absurd custom introduced within a few years. When the truth is told that both luncheons and dinners are served on the same extravagant scale as that of their elders, ceremonious to a degree, with a parade of dress involved; and that by reason of after-dinner entertainments late hours follow, and my little Miss and Master lie late o' mornings, one thinks its high time to set the fashion of farming out this little gentry. In other words, society fathers and mothers need to set up in their neighborhood a farm estate, where their children shall pass their summers in a natural, healthful way, guided and taught by tutors and governesses under a competent chatelaine's watchful eye and kind management. Gentlewomen would find a congenial occupation in this new field, and the little 400 their future salvation.

Some Women and Others.

A woman gains a dozen points when she acknowledges one fault.

The tip-tilted hat is the standby of the woman whose hair does not curl naturally.

A woman can be frightened into a duty she would not otherwise thing of performing.

TO FINICAL FEEDERS.

Reason Why a Child Cannot Eat a Thing.

The foundation of the habit is almost invariably laid in childhood.

"Tom cannot abide roast mutton," says the mother, with an intonation which fastens the idea in Tom's small mind that the disinclination, once or twice expressed, perhaps when he had eaten too many sureptitious sweets, in some way confers importance upon him. The next time roast mutton is the piece de resistance of the family dinner he refuses it yet more pointedly, and sulks until a tid-bit he can abide is laid upon his plate.

The whim grows by what it does not feed upon. One after another article of food is added to the list of proscribed, and Tom grows into youth and ever he is met with, and at whatever age, he is a terror to the hospitable, an abomination in the sight of the boarding-house keeper and a smoke in the nostrils of sensible, commonplace people who have found other roads to distinction than the display of gastronomic likes and dislikes.

"Eat what is set before thee, asking no questions, for consciences' sake," wrote the gentlemanly apostle. In a day when there is no risk of being set down unawares to meat that has been offered to idols, we may amend the injunction to suit the circumstances. "Eat what is set before you," or pretend ot eat it. Never, except at the last gasp of conscientious regard for the truth, intimate to the maker of the feast that you dislike any dish prepared for her guests.

The needless expression of such distaste is, perhaps, a half degree short of an insult, but in social etiquette we seldom measure grades with such exactness. Like the coachman chosen from his competitors for his shrewd mother wit, we drive as far from the edge of the precipice as we can. If driven to brutal veracity, give some other reason than personal aversion for declining to partake of the dish. It is a matter of no consequence whatever to society at large that you do not eat raw oysters. In fact, one can hardly imagine a fact more nearly infinitesimal. If offered to you with the option of acceptance or refusal you can let the dish pass. If the obnoxious portion be laid upon your plate, and you cannot summon the fortitude to swallow a mouthful, toy with it, or let it alone, and talk as for your life, to avert attention from your lack of conformity to established customs.

In the black book of my memory is written the story of one luncheon to which a business acquaintance of my husband was invited, unexpectedly to me. He called at our country house just at noon, and there was no time to alter the menu, had a market been near. Thus the incident is recorded in the aforesaid Doomsday book—Imprimis—Cream of asparagus soup. Visitor "never ate asparagus in any form." Second dish—Pickerel caught in the lake that morning. Visitor "did not care for fresh-water fish." Third failure—Cold beef a la mode, especially fine, to my way of thinking. Visitor "never tasted spiced or larded meat." Fourth failure—Tomato salad. "Visitor had an unfortunate antipathy to tomatoes." Fifth and final discomfiture—He would not touch the raspberries and cream with which the unfortunate meal was brought to a close. "Raspberries are absolute poison to my system. Luckily I recollected a scrap of cold lamb in the refrigerator; he could eat potatoes, bread and butter, and condescended to a second cup of tea.

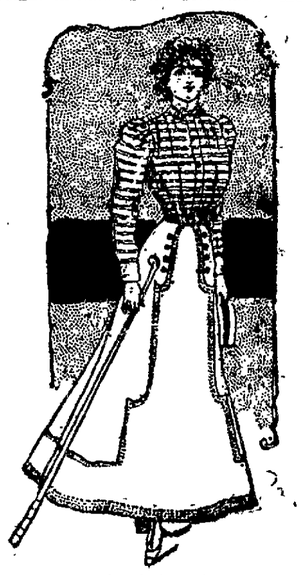

The finical feeder was not a dyspeptic. He went out of his way to inform me of that gratifying circumstance. Neither was he a boor in any other respect. Yet I registered a vow to myself when he departed that he should ever invited him to enter it again.

"I fink," remarked an observant child afterward, who had watched the non-performance with silent gravity while at table—"I fink his mother didn't teach not him to say 'I don't yike it' when he was yittle."

Master Boy struck at the root of the very ugly tree. Early habits, and a great many of them, are largely responsible for a breach of simple politeness, an offense to feeling and taste so common that one hardly dare animadvert upon it in general company for fear of treading upon the toes of somebody present. The mother who frowns down capricious appetite as unmannerly and a thing to be ashamed of drives a nail in a sure place in the edifice of good breeding. The man who has not learned this lesson of unselfish discipline of his whims and humors when young should regret and not indulge fancies hardened into dislikes by time and habit.—New York Herald.

A VIEW OF THE BABY.

BABIES OF TWO MONTHS, ARE IN APPEARANCE, SUBJECT TO MOODS.

If the Baby Could Speak, Would it Be to the Effect, That Its Birth Was "A Sleep and a Forgetting."

Babies of two months are subject to moods ,in appearance, if not in fact; so it may be that when the Baby Expert described the newest baby of his acquaintance as a mentally developed creature, with dreams in its eyes, "trailing clouds of glory" and suggesting a mysterious wisdom above that of its parents and the world, he caught the baby in a mood.

It seems to another observer that could this baby speak it would not be to the effect that it regards its birth as "a sleep and a forgetting," or that it feels "heaven lying about it;" but that it would give out this lusty statement: "A worldling of the world am I." At two months the world and the flesh have clutched it. It is a carnal creature, with its audible breathing, its firm cheeks and double chin. This baby indulges in spiritual retrospect! Put a cap over its ear, an apron about its stomach, a market basket in its arm, a cur at its heels and you have a sturdy butcher's boy. To the other observer there is no inward look in this baby's eyes. It seems to have no time to dwell upon memories of its pre-natal existence; shapes and colors are constantly appearing and disappearing before it, and its eyes grow round and bulge with curious interest. It tastes the air of the world, finds it good, licks out its tongue and smacks its lips over it. Like all new-born creatures it is perfectly selfish in its regard for those about. It encourages its mother's attention; it recognizes that she has an excuse for existence. She feeds it. But if she disappoints it for a moment of the expected meal, it takes in to a pasion of screams, shaking its trembling fists, and stiffening its body to kick. The attention of other people are often convenient, but it maintains a perfectly independent stand in regard to these. No amount of patting, trotting, or talking baby talk will draw from it a responsive smile, but when its horizon is clear of intrusive sounds and faces, it may be caught laughing to itself; then its round face broadens with good humor, its half-closed eyes shine, it shows its bare gums and shakes its head. It is a real smile all over the face, and it means something. Not angels' whispering; this smile is in anticipation of the good things to come.

are enabled to reach any part of the mouth, and there are no hard corners to bruise the gums.

Improving the Mirror.

Let not her to whom nature has been nigard of her charms despair. If she would see herself in the deceptive mirror as others see her with the eye, or as nearly as possible, let her hasten to a shop and buy a quantity of soft, pure white material—gauze, if possible, if not, Swiss or Indian muslin will answer very well.

Be sure and have it pure white, and after polishing the surface of the mirror, gather the material at the centre of the top, and hang it down softly at either side, framing the glass of folds of pure white.

The true tints of the complexion, the expression of the countenance and eyes, the correct color of the hair, will be very accurately reflected.

This is one of the milliner's oldest secrets. Many of the most artful of them drape the glasses in the softest drapery of pure white. It is done with the view of giving the fair patronesses the best view of themselves possible, administering in this way a little subtle flattery, thereby disposing easily of a greater amount of goods.—Toilettes.

Lawn Playhouses For Girls.

The latest novelties in the small toy shops are large playhouses to be set upon the lawn for the use of the little girls of the family. These come in very pretty designs, counterparts of the Queen Anne cottages in which the little mothers really live. They are large enough to accommodate three or four little girls and their dolly families.

The interior consists of one large room, which is furnished with small chairs, tables, couches, beds, bureaus, bookcases and so on, all of which articles of furniture come in very attractive forms and can be purchased at any of the large shops dealing in children's toys and games.

These houses will be welcomed gladly by the little misses, for they open out a vista of afternoon teas, parties and reception at which the hostess can play at being a real live mamma and social leader. Placed in a shaded corner of the lawn, or out in the orchard, the girls of the family will pass many a happy hour when the sun is too hot for out-door exercise.

When Warm and Weary

Atonic bath, very grateful after a day's shopping in town, or a day's hunting for summer quarters in the country, is prepared by allowing several sliced lemons or limes to soak in the bath water for an hour, until all the juice is extracted. Then add a handful or two of bran and a delightful bath is in store for one. Bath bags of oatmeal and orris, or shaved soap and almond flour and other sweet and cleansing things are more suitible for the face than for the feet. The lemon bath has invigorating qualities which can only be appreciated by the weary one has tried its reviving properties. As "Dodo's" friend who loved a bottle of eau-de-cologne in her tub said: "It makes you feel like a goddess."

AMERICAN EXPORTS.

For the Second Time They Go Up.

THEY EXCEED OUR IMPORTS.

Prior to 1898 the Imports Always Were in Excess of the Exports of the United States.

Facts That Are Shown By the Report of the Fiscal Year That Has Just Ended—It Shows the Greatness of Our Advance in the World's Commerce.

Washington, Aug. 13.—American manufacturers made their best export record in the fiscal year just ended. Not only were their exportations larger than in any preceding year, but for the second time in the history of our foreign commerce they exceeded the value of the imports of manufactures. In the fiscal year 1898, for the first time in the history of the manufacturing export trade, the exportation of manufactures exceeded the the importation of manufactures, the total value of exports of manufactures being about 25 per cent. in excess of that of imports of manufactures. In the fiscal year 1899, however, despite the increase of in imports of manufactures, the total exportation of manufactures was 30 per cent. greater than the importation of manufactures, being $338,-667,794, against $259,570,203 of imports of manufactures.

Prior to the fiscal year 188, imports of manufacture were also greater than exports of manufatures. From 1888 to 1897 imports of manufacture ranged from $1,000,000 a day, with the siugle exception of 1894. During all that time the exportations of manufactures was steadily increasing, so that in 1897 they amounted to $277,000,000 against $130,000,000 in 1888, having thus more than doubled in that period. In 1898 they were $290,697,354, and in the year just ended, as already indicated, $338,-667,794. It was not until 1898 that through the combined reduction of imports and increase of exports the tide turned in favor of American manufacturers, and in that year the total exports ofm anufactures were, for the first time, greater thant he imports, being $290,697,354, against $230,897,676. In the fiscal year 1898 the exports of manufactures exceeded the imports $39,799,.678, and in 1899 the excess was $79, 097,501.

Imports of manufactures in 1899 were nearly $200,000,000 more than in 1890, while exports of manufactures weren early $200,000,000 more than in 1890.

Manufactures in 1899 formed a larger percentage of our total exports than in any precedingy year. During the last half of the year this was especially true, in some months the exports of manufactures being more than 33 per cent. of the total exports, while for the entire year they were 28.13 per cent. of the total exports, against 26.87 pere ent. in 1897, 23.14 per cent. in 1896, 21.14 per cent. in 1894, 19.37 per cent. in 1891, 18.99 per cent. in 18.99, 16.69 per cent. in 1883, and 12.48 per cent. in 1880. During the last half of the fiscal year 1899 exports of manufactures averaged fully $30,000,000 per month, and during the entire year averaged more than $1,000,000 for each business day.

Held For Six Burglaries.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 13.—Archibald W. Mossop was held in $1,500 bail to answer the charge of six times entering as a burglar the store of the Crescent Drug and Chemical Company in No. 627 Broad street. The young man's father keeps a picture store next door. The booty secured in the six robberies was worth about $800.

WILL BLOW UP MINES.

Destruction Threatened if Great Britain Forces War on Boers.

London, Aug. 13.—The Boer organ in London, the "Standard and Diggers' News," publishes a Johannesburg despatch threateuing Great Britain in the event of war, saying the Boers are determined to wreck the mines and irretrievably ruin the general body of shareholders by blowing up millions of dollars' worth of machinery, adding that war will mean the absolute ruin of Johannesburg, both as a town and as a mining centre, and saying:

"While it will doubtless end in a victory for England, the price of that victory will be the ruin of thousands, who ought to consider the price they must pay before authorizing the government to declare war."

Another despatch from Johannesburg, however, predicts further concessions, and says:

"The reply of the Transvaal to the proposal for a joint inquiry is being delayed until the government has prepared a scheme granting the Outlanders immediate and substantial representation, as the Transvaal will make every effort to avert intervention in the internal affairs of the country."

Ready to Send Troops.

Bombay, Aug. 13—Preparations have been almost completed for the despatch of 12,000 troops to South Africa. A number of transports are in readiness in Indian waters and in the event of war troops will be embarked simultaneously here, at Karachie and at Calcutta.

Has Cargo of Army Stores.

Lorenzo Marquez, Delagoa Bay, Aug. 13.—The German East Africa Line steamship Reichstag has arrived here from Hamburg, Naples and Mombasa with 400 cases of cartridges and other war stores for the Transvaal.

THE PENNSYLVANIANS' PAY

Matter Adjusted to the Satisfaction of the Soldiers.

San Francisco, Aug. 13.—The captains in the tenth Pennsylvania regiment have been worried for some time over the fact that the pay of each, up to the amount of $500 was likely to be withheld until some irregularities in the papers transferring state property to the federal authorities could be arranged. Learning that, the committee wired Senators Penrose and Quay requesting their assistance. A despatch has been received here saying that the matter had been satisfactorily adjusted.

Morrison Barclay of company I, who was wounded in the stomach in the Philippines, is in the general hospital here. The army surgeons are to operate on him.

The members of the regiment have voluntarily agreed to recognize the authority of their officers after they are mustered out until after the reception on thier arrival home.

Private Will J. Davis died of pneumonia at the general hospital Thursday night. His body is to be shipped to his home in Alliance, O.

Hobart's Brother Fatally Injured.

Lima, Ohio, Aug. 13.—C. T. Hobart, of New York, brother of Vice President Hobart and chief engineer of the Columbus-Lima and Milwaukee Railroad, which is being built northward from this city, met with a probably fatal accident near Gomar, north of this city. The track was being ballasted and he was superintending the work, when, in passing between tracks and a heavy crane, an engine came along and caught him. He was squeezed frightfully and was picked up unconscious and carried to Gomar, where he received medical attendance. He is kept under the influence of opiates nearly all the time, owing to the intense pain he suffers. The doctors attending him say they are unable to determine the full extent of his injiries, but fear that he is fatally injured internally.

Had Their Fingers Blown Off.

Port Jervis, Aug. 13.—Elvin Sherwood and Arthur Berringer, two young men of Roscoe, Sullivan County, in company with Frank Beams, B. Weeks and Charles Gordon, started for Jeffersonville to play a return game with a bowling team of that village. When near North Branch Sherwood and Berringer produced several cannon fire crekers left over from the Fourth of July. Sherwood lit one, holding it in his hand. Young Berringer made a grab for the creker and while the two were struggling for its possession it exploded, shattering their hands in a terrible manner and blowing off several fingers.

Fell Dead on Sampson's Ship.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 13.—Mrs. Helen A. Sands of New York died suddenly on the steamship New York. She had just ascended the gangway and was about to grasp the hand of Admiral Sampson, who was waiting to receive her, when she fell to the deck and soon expired. Mrs. Sands was 55 years old. She had been spending the summer at South West Harbor, and came from there to visit Rear Admiral Sampson. The body was taken to New York, and the burial will take place in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn.

Steamship's Cargo on Fire.

St. Michaels, Azores, Aug. 13.—The British steamship Cayo Mono, Capt. Friond, from Zaza via Kingston, Jamaica, July 26, for Genoa, has put in here for coal. She reports that on Aug 7, in latitude 35 north, longitude 40 west, she passed the Hamburg-American steamship Venetia, Capt. Schulke, from Hamburg via Grimsby July 27 for the West Indies and New Orleans, and that the Venetia had a fire in her cargo in the third hold, but declined assistance.

John V. Dahlgren Dies in Colorado.

Denver, Col., Aug. 13.—John Vinton Dahlgren, of New York, son of the late Admiral Dahlgren, died here of lung trouble. He arrived here some time ago, and for a time seemed to be improving in health. Mrs. Dahlgren, who was Miss Elizabeth Drexel, daughter of the late Joseph Drexel, of Philadelphia, has been with her husband for several weeks. As yet no arrangement has been made for the funeral, but the body will be taken East.

Doan's Kidney Pills are endorsed by Portsmouth citizens.

Read what a citizen says:

Mrs. Ira E. Randall, of 73 Pleasant street, says: "I was taken with acute lameness in the back and it became so tender over the kidneys that I could not bend forward. Twinges of pain often caught me in the loins in making any quick movement. The pain, and the tired out feeling hanging over me all the time, was most distressing. I was very bad when I went to Philbrick's pharmacy in Franklin block for Doan's Kidney pills, yet they very quickly benefitted me and I discontinued using them before the box was completed. I am very favorably impressed with the old quaker remedy, and as I am quite recovered from the attack I can certainly recommend it. I advise anyone having anything wrong with their kidneys to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I am confident any one trying them will find them effective."

POINTS AND MOOT POINTS.

If you fish for love don't bait with pride.

Love is a delicious spur to action; other incitements are more or less cruel.

Love is the clew to the labyrinth of all times and eternities.

To refuse to love is the unpardonable sin.

Jealousy is a thorn we plunge into our own self-loving hearts and leave there to fester.

One adores little hearts—but not small ones.

There is yet time for love and justice—God has not made moral laws for a moment.

God poetizes and philosophizes as well as geometrizes.

A true thought is from heaven—it flashes through the brain of man, but was not born there.

Most minds are impregnated by mind, few are fecund of themselves.

The best authors are the most lively, the least literary.

Good has a strong affinity for letters, evil for life.

We can make assays and appraisals, we cannot make values.

Words are sometimes married to ideas, and that excellent union constitutes style; verbal flirtations and misalliances are much more common, however.

How To Reform a Law.

It was General Grant who remarked that the best method to bring about the reform of a bad law was to strictly enforce it. The statute books of every State are disfigured with a great many laws that the people have outgrown. Many of them have been left to sink into quiet desuetude so long that they have become obsolete and forgotten. Occasionally some would-be reformer takes the trouble to resurrect one of them to provoke the discomfort of the people and arouse their obloquy and contempt. Such attempts generally accomplish nothing tangible in the way of reform and prove rather shortlived. In the meantime no Legislature is aroused to the importance of repealing this sort of legislation and it is suffered to remain as a relic of sixteenth century ignorance and illiberalism in a fin-de-siecle age.

Able Gin Drinkers in Belgium.

Belgium is famous all over the world for the quantity of alcohol drunk by its inhabitants. Every one who has spent a Sunday in the mining districts or has visited the poorest quarters of the large cities knows the terrible evils caused by the cheap spirits, especially gin, consumed. Belgium, with a population of between 6,000,000 and 7,000,-000, has about 220,000 bars where gin is sold at the rate of 6 centimes (a little more than an American cent) for a small glass. In some of the small towns there is a bar for every twenty inhabitants, and often I have met workmen who drink daily their twenty small glasses of gin. I remember one stonecutter who was famous among his comrades because he drank his thirty small glasses daily. Half of his wages was spent in drink, and he ate nearly nothing.

Cat Whipped the Eagle.

North Wolcott, N. Y., Aug. 1.—A cat seized by an eagle at Lake Side, whipped the bird in a fierce battle in midair. The eagle managed to reach its nest with the cat still clinging to it. There the cat seized an eaglet and escaped to the fishing camp below unhurt.

NATIVES SCATTERED.

Santa Rita and Guagua Occupied By Americans.

NO RESISTANCE WAS OFFERED

The Destruction of Railroad Causes a Delay in Americans Capturing the Town of Angeles.

Scouting Parties Fail to Locate the Enemy—General MacArthur Resumes Headquarters at San Antonio—Major Bell, With Three Officers, Enters Angeles.

Manila, Aug. 13.—Everything is quiet and a heavy rain is falling.

The towns of Santa Rita and Guagua have been occupied by the Americans without any resistence on the part of the enemy.

Gen MacArthur reports that the town of Angeles is half deserted and that the natives are thoroughly scattered.

Owing to the fact that the natives had torn up three miles of the railroad track the town of Angeles is not occupied by the Americans, General Wheaton with the 12th and 17th Infantry and 51st Iowa remaining at Calulut.

The 9th Infantry and a battalion of the 22d Infantry scouted to the southwest, penetrating a distance of ten miles without finding the enemy.

Gen. McArthur with his staff has resumed his headquarters at San Antonio, taking with him Andrew's battery, and will join the other column at San Antonio, which will probably encounter the Filipinos beyond Santa Rica

Major Bell, with three officers and a sergeant, entered Angeles, charging with pistols and shouting loudly. The Filipinos there, sixty in number, supposed that the Americans were attacking the town in force and were thoroughly routed. They rallied later, however, and Major Bell and his companions retired.

Reports corroborated by Filipino sources say that the enemy's losses in Wednesday's fighting were 60 killed and 200 wounded. The enemy's supply of ammunition was very short. Gen. Mascardo commanded the Filipino forces.

The Americans did the hardest kind of campaigning and hundreds of them were exhausted.

A Despatch From Otis.

Washington, Aug. 13.—This despatch has been received by the War Department:

"Manila, Aug. 11.

"Adjutant General, Washington.

"McArthur has taken possession of Santa Rica. Reconnoitered Porac, Angeles and other points. Filipinos driven north. One casualty yesterday, today, none.

"Condition roads makes movement troops difficult but considered necessary to open this section of country as it virtually gives control of province of Batann and relieves inhabitants there.

"OTIS."

Rockefeller is Still Alive.

Washington, Aug. 13.—The following cable was received from Gen. Otis at Manila:

"From Southern Luzzon report comes that American officer held there prisoner, and description given indicates Major Rockefeller."

Major Rockefeller is the officer who disappeared several months ago, shortly after his arrival in the Philippines, and nothing has been heard of him since.

Interstate Commerce Law.

Denver, Col., Aug. 13.—The National Association of Railroad Commissioners adopted a resolution recommending the next congress to revise the interstate commerce law upon the suggestion made by the interstate commerce commission in its last report. The resolution, which was prepared by the committee on legislation, was adopted without discussion.

Raising Money to Welcome Soldiers.

San Francisco, Aug. 13.—At the Orpheum Theatre a sale of seats and boxes by auction was held for the benefit of the fund to be used in the entertainment and reception of the returning California regiment. Five of the boxes were sold for $3,900, and of that sum Mrs. A. S. Townsend, formerly of Boston, contributed $2,025.

Lightning Causes Big Fire.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Aug. 13.—During a severe storm lightning struck the store of the W. H. Smith Hardware Company, a four-story building. The building was burned Paulus Reps and Berry's restaurant, both three-story buildings, had their contents destroyed. The loss will easily reach $150,000.

Last Holmes Figure in Her Grave.

Philadelphia, Aug. 13.—The last prominent figure in the H. H. Holmes murder trial lies in her grave. She was Miss Magaret Reah. Her funeral took place Friday. Miss Reah was matron of the Fourth police station and notified the State of the plan of defense to furnish perjured testimony.

Cuban Editors Appeal.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Editors Ricardo and Cervantes, of the Reconcentrado, the Havana newspaper suppressed by General Ludlow, have appealed to Secretary Root for a revision of the order of General Ludlow.

Indians Outwit Mexicans.

Mexico, Aug. 13.—The Yaqui army that was beseiged by the Mexican army at Bacum has outwitted the pickets and escaped to mountain fastnesses.

Eighteen Sailors Drowned.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 13.—The Miowera brings the news from New Zealand that the brigantine Enterprise has been lost. Her crew numbered eighteen.

MINERS RETURN TO WORK

Difficulties in Pennsylvania Are to be Arbitrated.

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 13.—The 600 striking miners at the Exeter colliery, West Pittston, have resumed work pending an agreement with Mr. Connors, superintendent of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company, to receive their committee and hear grievances and proposals and to concede everything demanded that was within bounds.

The Babylon colliery of the Temple Iron Company at Duryea and the Stevens colliery, also at West Pittston, where the men have been on strike for a week with similar complaints to those of the Exeter men, have also resumed work, and their difficulties are expected to be quickly adjusted. At these two mines nearly a thousand workmen were affected.

Miners employed by the Susquehanna Coal Company at Nanticoke and Glen Lyon, who recently struck, have removed all their tools from the mines and have evidently made preprations for a long strike.

The miners at the Delaware and Hudson colliery at Plymouth have, upon demand, been given an increase from $1.75 to $1.90 a day.

Shut up in an Icebox.

Greenport, L. I., Aug. 13.—Harry E. Doyle, a 14-year-old boy, had a narrow escape from being frozen to death. George Doyle, assisted by his brother Harry, were storing meat in a butcher shop. When the boy entered the refrigerator with the last piece of beef without a candle the proprietor, C. B. Higgins, closed the door, believing it left open through carelessness. The boy shouted but could make no one hear through the heavily lined door. About a half hour later one of the clerks had occasion to enter the ice box and found Harry nearly unconscious. His hands, feet, and ears were numb. Medical aid was summoned and the boy was treated and removed to his home. It is said he will suffer no permanent ill effects.

To Strike on New Haven Road.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 13.—The telegraphers of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad have prevailed upon the engineers and firemen to join in their cause and to threaten to strike with them next week, if the order is given to go out. It is announced by members of the Order of Locomotive Fireman that they have formulated their demands for a higher schedule of wages. The firemen and engineers made an attempt to consult with the officers of the road and they failed to obtain recognition. They will make another attempt before deciding whether to strike or not.

Motorman Shoots Teamster.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 13.—William T. Caple, a non-union motorman on the Central avenue line of the Big Consolidated Company, fired two shots at William Little, a teamster, both bullets taking effect. In return, Little picked up a hatchet lying on his wagon and hurled it at Caple, striking the motorman in the head and making a frightful wound. The motorman claims that Little called him a "scab" as his car was passing the wagon. This the teamster denies. Caple is in jail upon the charge of shooting to kill. Little was removed to a hospital. Neither of the men is fatally injured.

Dangerous Lunatic Escapes.

Matteawan, N. Y., Aug. 13.—F. W. Cunestensen, an inmate, escaped from the State Criminal Insane Asylum. He had just been photographed and was being taken back to the asylum from the photograph gallery when he broke away from the guards and escaped in a cornfield. Cunestensen was transferred to the Matteawan Asylum from Elmira and is considered dangerous to be at large. He is six feet in height, weighs 180 pounds, and is about 25 years old. When he escaped he had on no coat or vest and wore one slipper. The asylum guards are searching the country for him.

Emperor Opens the Ems Canal.

Berlin, Aug. 13.—Emperor William attended the opening of the Dortmund-Ems Canal. Replying to an address of the Burgomaster, he said he regarded the canal as a work to form a part of a greater whole, which he himself and the Government had inflexibly determined to further, and he hoped the nation's representative would place him in a position to do so before the end of the year.

Murdered at Narragansett.

Narragansett Pier, Aug. 13.—A man's body, bound hand and foot and weighing 200 pounds, was found on the shore off a point three miles from here. He was well dressed, had a blond mustache and was evidently a person of refinement and means. Thirty-five cents, three handkerchiefs and a pair of eyeglasses were the only articles found on him.

Kronman Admitted to Bail.

New York, Aug. 13.—Nathan Kronman, accused of murdering his wife, has been addmitted to bail in the sum of $10,000. At the close of the inquest the Coroner stated that there was not a single circumstance that pointed to the guilt of the prisoner, and said that he did not think it right or just to hold him a prisoner simply on suspicion.

Vengeance on Pirates.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 13.—Recently a British cargo boat on the Canton River was robbed by pirates. The British gunboat Sandpipes chased the pirates to the village of Kamchkat. The robbers refused to restore the goods and the warship destroyed the place.

Rain Stops a Famine.

London, Aug. 13.—Specials from Bombay report rain in Allahabad, Madras, the Deccan and Bengal and showers in Bombay. The Government's anxiety in regard to the possibility of a famine is therefore relieved.

Secret Sessions Are Over.

Rennes, France, Aug. 13.—The Dreyfus court-martial concluded its secret sessions, when M. Paleologue, of the Foreign Office, completed his explanations of the secret dossier. The court met again this morning.

The Man Of The Hour.

A Magnificent Portrait Of

ADMIRAL DEWEY

In Ten Colors. (Size 14x24 Inches),

Will be published by us shortly. It is now being printed for us on heavy plate paper, in a form suitable for framing, by one of the largest art lithograph houses in America, in the famous French style of color-plate work. Every American family will want one of these handsome pictures of Admiral Dewey. It must be remembered that the picture will be in no sense a cheap chromo, but will be an example of the very highest style of illuminated printing. It will be an ornament to any library or drawing-room. Our readers can have the Dewey portrait at what it costs us (namely, ten cents per copy) by merely filling out the coupon below, and sending it to this office at once. There will be such a demand for this portrait when it is published that we advise sending orders in advance. As many copies as may be desired can be had on one coupon, providing ten cents is sent for each copy. Write name and address plainly, and remit in coin or postage stamps.

To THE PORTSMOUTH HERALD, Portsmouth, N. H.

For the enclosed remittance of.....cents, send me.....copies of the ADMIRAL DEWEY PORTRAIT in colors as described in your paper.

MONDAY, AUGUST 14, 1899.

Dreyfus is up against it again, and so are his enemies.

As the rebels have more than once discovered, General McArthur is a warm number.

The man in charge of the cuspidors at Rennes is going to have a very busy time during the Dreyfus trial.

There is one thing for which America will willingly apologize to England, and that is for having produced William Waldorf Astor.

Secretary Root announces that "from now on" the war will be prosecuted with all possible energy. Mr. Root expects to furnish some of the energy.

The visitors to a Colorado watering place who were obliged to submit to a wholesale vaccination are praying fervently "for the success of our arms."

Another trouble with so many Cubans is that they seem to believe they can rehabilitate the island by sitting in the Havana cafes and talking about it.

It is noticeable that much of the clamor to have Gen. Otis displaced comes from men who do not want the war in the Philippines prosecuted to a finish.

Those that are insisting that Col. Roosevelt will not last until 1904 ought to consult some of the Spaniards in Cuba on the subject of the colonel's staying qualities.

Certain western democrats accuse Arthur P. Gorman of trying to swindle Bryan out of the presidential nomination. It is too bad that Mr. Gorman can't let Mr. Bryan's personal property alone.

Baron von Stengel, one of the German delegates to the recent peace conference at The Hague, contends that the affair was an utter failure. There can certainly be no doubt that Von Stengel did his level best to make it so.

Gen. Toral, who surrendered Santiago, has been court-martialed and acquitted by one vote. Toral was bottled up with an exhausted army and would have had no better luck than Cervera if he had attempted to cut his way out.

Baby's Tooth Set in a Ring.

Exclusive young matrons of the smart set who are also doting mothers have just introduced into fashion a new ring, which is exciting the greatest attention.

The woman who first wore one of these mysterious rings told all about it the other day to a girl friend who was admiring it and wanted to copy it. She said. "Why, the little white stone wouldn't be considered a gem to any one but me. It is only one of my baby girl's pearly white teeth. She knocked out a little front tooth not long ago, and as it was too precious to throw away, I took it to my jewelers and asked him if it couldn't be set in a ring. And here is the result. I told him to surround the tooth with diamonds and turquoises, alternating with one another, as I think just the touch of blue adds much to the beauty of the ring. The baby tooth encircled with diamonds looks too white. A number of my friends who have copied my idea have taken one of their baby's teeth to the jeweler's and had it surrounded with the child's birth stone."

Before and After.

Before a man's married he's a dude; after marriage he's subdued. Before marriage he has no buttons on his shirt; after marriage he has no shirt. Before marriage he swears he would not marry the best woman in the world; after marriage he finds that he hasn't.

"Itching hemorrhoids were the plague of my life. Was almost wild. Doan's Ointment cured me quickly and permanently, after doctors had failed." C. F. Cornwell, Valley street, Saugerties, N. Y.

INJURED BY AN EXPLOSION OF GAS.

HALTFORD, CONN., Aug. 13.—The escaping of gas at the state capitol caused Watchman James Keefe, and George A. Cooper, assistant, to investigate the leakage at about nine o'clock tonight, with a lighted lantern. They went into the vault with stone steps on the north side. On opening a door a tremendous explosion occurred, blowing out several of the steps and moving the steps two feet from their foundation for a distance of fifty feet. Watchman Keefe was seriously injured and may not recover and Assistant Cooper was also badly injured.

NORTH ATLANTIC SQUADRON SAILS.

BAR HARBOR, ME., Aug. 13.—The North Atlantic squadron, consisting of Admiral Sampson's flagship the New York, the cruiser Brooklyn, and the battleships Indiana, Massachusetts and Texas, sailed at seven o'clock this morning. The squadron will go to sea for a few days to practice and then will proceed to Newport. Twenty men were left here, including the master-at-arms of the Massachusetts.

FIGHT AT SAN MATEO.

MANILA, Aug. 13.—A reconnoisance yesterday by troops of General Young's brigade, with the object of ascertaining the whereabouts of the enemy near San Mateo, ten miles northeast of Manila, resulted in the capture of San Mateo. Our loss was three killed and thirteen wounded. Our men were exhausted by the heavy marching. It is estimated that the enemy numbered between three hundred and four hundred men.

DISTURBANCES IN PARIS.

PARIS, Aug. 13. — Disturbances occurred this evening outside the anti-Semite league, when M. Jules Guerin, president of the league, and M. Max Regis, the Jew Batin, against whom orders of arrest were issued yesterday, charged with conspiracy to overthrow the government, were assembled. They are still besieged by the police. Several arrests were made during the evening.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—Forecast for New England: Fair, cooler weather, northerly winds. Reports received from the Washington office at ten o'clock tonight say the storm is still central in Florida, but with decreased strength. Conditions favorable for all vessels sailing north at all ports from Wilmington, N. C., north.

HURRICANE DECREASING.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—At five P. M. the weather bureau received a telegram from Jupiter, Florida, saying the hurricane was central over central Florida coast, moving north northwest, and would probably follow up the Atlantic coast tonight, causing high winds in the middle gulf states.

DEWEY AT LEGHORN.

LEGHORN, ITALY, Aug. 13.—The United States cruiser Olympia arrived here at noon today from Naples, and was received with salutes and a cordial welcome. The commanding officer of the Italian cruiser Tripoli and the captain of the port both visited Admiral Dewey on board.

FROM CAPE TOWN.

LONDON, Aug. 13 —The Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says: "I am convinced that the first shot fired in the Transvaal will be the signal for a general native uprising. The imperial government, I can assert positively, has been warned accordingly."

BASE BALL.

The following is the result of the National league base ball games played yesterday:

FRENCH SCHOONER SUNK.

LONDON, Aug. 13. — The French schooner Paulboto was sunk in collision today off Lowestoff by the steamer Hercules and seven persons were drowned. The steamer rescued the remainder of the crew.

THE DEWEY OF THE REVOLUTION.

Marion Howard, in the Boston Sunday Post, has an interesting article on John Paul Jones, whom she calls the Dewey of the Revolution. Embraced in the article is the following which will prove of great interest:

"In Portsmouth, N. H, is a club named for Paul Jones composed of members of the Sons of the American Revolution. It was organized Dec. 15, 1896, and has enrolled in its membership Mayor William O. Junkins, the Hon. Frank Jones, the Hon. O. L. Frisbee, Postmaster Leavitt, Henry Plant and Morton Plant of New York and many eminent men.

The objects of the club are six in all—First, 'To associate congenial men, whose ancesters sustained the colonies in the Revolutionary War,' Second 'To inculcate patriotism in the members and their descendants,' Third, 'To collect and preserve records and history relating to the American Revolution. Fourth. 'To mark the graves of revolutionary heroes.' Fifth, 'To commemorate and celebrate events in the history of the American revolution, especially the leading events in Paul Jones's life,' Sixth, 'And other historical and patriotic purposes.'

It was the intention of the club to celebrate on Tuesday next, but a postponement has been found necessary.

O. L. Frisbee, president of the club, will give an address of welcome at the coming reunion of the Pepperell Association (of which he is founder and president) at Kittery, Me., on Aug. 30 and 31, it being their third annual gathering. Among the speakers will be Charles Mellen and Daniel Rollins of Boston, Professor I. F. Frisbee, Ph D., of Lewton, M., and Judge Frost of Dover, N. H. Adelaide Cilley Waldron will furnish an original poem, and Miss Wentworth of Kittery will also entertain.

BRAVE MEN FALL

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache and tired, listless run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. Listen to J. W. Gardner, Idaville, Ind. He says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he is all run down, and don't care whether he lives or dies. It did more to give me new strength and good appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cents at Globe Grocery Co. Every bottle guaranteed.

PLANNING A BIG OUTING.

Exeter merchants are planning to hold a big outing, arranged on the same plan as that of the Amesbury business men, which recently took place at Hampton beach, on Aug. 4. The list of attractions includes a clambake, athletic sports, dancing and the like.

SOME NEEDED INVENTIONS.

A bike lamp that will stay lit.

A book-shelf that won't fall down.

An ice-pick that will break the ice where you jab it.

An angler's scales that will do the lying for the fisherman.

A servant's alarm clock that won't wake up the members of the family.

A safety catch in a passenger elevator that will work when there is an accident.

An automatic peach basket that will make all the small peaches come to the top.

A piano that will sound the same to the girl playing it as it does to the neighbors.

A palatable health food that your children will eat without being forced to do so with a stick.

An adjustable ring that will fit the usual number of girls you become engaged to during the summer.

An ambulance surgeon who can tell the difference between a drunken man and one with a fractured skull.

DON'T.

Don't work yourself to death in order to make a living.

Don't envy your neighbor's luck; envy his pluck, if anything.

Don't expect your opinions to fit if you obtain them ready made.

Don't attempt to talk if your mouth is full or your head is empty.

Don't forget that quitting a fault is the best way to correct it.

Don't forget that nothing appears or disappears quicker than tears.

A Kissing Nation.

In no other part of the world is kissing so much in vogue as in Russia. From time immemorial it has been the national salute; indeed, it is more of a greeting than a caress.

In public affairs, as in private, the kiss is an established custom. Fathers and sons kiss; old generals with rusty mustaches kiss; whole regiments kiss. The emperor kisses his officers. On a receiving day there are almost as many kisses as shots exchanged. If a lilliputian corps of cadets have earned the imperial approval, the imperial salute is bestowed upon the head boy, who passes it on with a hearty report to his neighbor, he in his turn to the next, and so on throught the whole juvenile body.

On a holiday or fete day the young and delicate mistress of a house will not only kiss all her maid servants but all her men servants, too, and if the gentleman does not venture above her hand she will stoop and kiss his cheek.

To judge, also, from the number of salutes, the matrimonial bond in these high circles must be one of uninterrupted felicity. A gentleman scarcely enters or leaves the room without kissing his wife, either on her forehead, cheek or hand.

How Whalebone Is Secured.

A curious industry, at least to the uninitiated, is that pertaining to whalebone, from its original or crude form to that of its many applications, useful and artistic. Most of this article is landed at San Francisco and shipped Eastward to be distributed at the various centers. Before leaving the Pacific coast the bone is split, sorted according to color, and tied up in bundles: after splitting the pieces are termed "stalks" or slabs," are from three to twelve feet in length when ready for shipment, and weigh from five to twenty-five pounds each. When received by the manufacturer each slab is fringed with strong glossy black hair; this has a separate value of its own, and is used for certain furniture manufactures, and is also mixed with horse hair in brushes. On the hair being removed the slabs are scrubbed vigorously and then put to soak in water for about a week; when sufficiently softened they are subjected to the action of steam in strong receptacles of special design, being thus ready to be split into "shell" or "grain" bone, and finally cut into stays, whipstocks, etc.

A Marriage Fee.

A clergyman of Georgia was once standing in the Court House, says the Homiletic Review, when a Hoosier came in to see the ordinary in order to procure a marriage license. The countryman asked for a "pair of licenses," and on making the purchase necessary to being united in the holy bonds of matrimony inquired of the ordinary: "Who can I git to marry me?" The ordinary replied that he could perform the ceremony, or the parson, standing near, would probably accommodate him. The countryman turned to the parson and asked if he would marry him. The parson readily consented, and asked the would-be bridegroom, "Where's your gal?" He replied, "Out yonder—in the street." The parson said, "Fetch her in." Then she was "fotch" in and the "knot tied." The bridegroom asked the parson the amount of the indebtedness incurred, and was told that no charge was made, but that he always left the matter for the bridegroom to decide. The latter replied: "I've got no money. I've got a load of punkins out yonder; I'll give you a punkin."

Gladstone and Wine.

The subject of wine interested him; he was fond of trying different varieties, and had a great liking for port. Often expectant guests—especially the ladies—looking forward to a delightful conversaton at dinner, would be sadly disappointed by finding Mr. Gladstone launched upon the topic of wine, which even he could hardly raise to sublime heights. It has been whispered that his taste in wine was not above criticism, but upon this point it would be rash to express an opinion. He once told the present writer that, in his younger days, he at one time kept some peculiar Greek wine on his writing table to sip while at his work; but he very soon discovered that it was a most unwholesome habit, and left it off. Since that time he never drank wine between meals. He said that if he had ever given in to the temptation to use alcohol as a spur to the hard-worked brain he would have been lost.—Life of Gladstone by Sir Henry Reid.

OLD INDIA PALE ALE

It is bright and sparkling and has a nice creamy taste, and is prescribed by the doctors generally as a sedative for nervous people. There are but few medicines equal to this ale. Many people who are wakeful find that a glass taken at night secures them a continuing and refreshing sleep. As a tonic for ladies and invalids it has no equal.

Directions:—One small glass full four times a day, before eating and going to bed.

It is a food as well as a medicine. It is bottled by the Newfields Bottling Co. only.

It is put up in cases of two dozen pints.

Five Hundred Bodies Have Been Recovered.

BELIEVED 6,000 ARE LOST.

An Appeal for Aid for Those Who Lost All Their Possessions By the Terrible Hurricane.

Bodies of Men, Women and Children Float Through the Streets in the Rushing Torrents — Cisterns Flooded With Salt Water—The Situation Appalling.

Ponce, Porto Rico, Aug. 13.—It is now plain that Ponce was the greatest sufferer by the destructive hurricane. The rivers Portugues and Canas flowed through the city, drowning thousands of people.

Five hundred bodies have already been recovered.

An eye witness, who was on the top of a large stone building in the Alambra Plaza saw the bodies of men, women and children floating in the water in the streets. Every one was paralyzed with fear and unable to render any assistance. The Southern coast was swept clean as far as Yauco, eighteen miles. The towns of Tallabon and Juan Diaz were destroyed. Only the large church edifices are left standing.

There is not a drop of water in Ponce to drink. The cisterns are full of salt water from the ocean, and the stench arising from the dead bodies is dreadful.

Gaudaloupe suffered more than any other island except Porto Rico. The large vessels in the harbor generally managed to beat out to sea, and whether they foundered there or rode out the storm in safety is not yet known. The steamship Blrondelle was unable to get clear and was blown upon the beach, where she remained. The Alcyon, running before the storm, had her poop deck crushed and narrowly escaped foundering

The eastern islands received the blow without warning. At almost the same hour Point a Pitre, St. Louis, Marie Galante and Saintes Toitures were smitten. Of these only Point a Pitre remains in communication with the rest of the world. The other towns may have been blown flat. That they have suffered severely is absolutely certain. Fortunately the centre of the storm passed to northward of Martinique, else the tale of death would have been much longer.

The storm descended with terrific suddenness. A tidal wave rushed up the bay, wrecking wharves, capsizing small boats and flooding the beach. This wave was followed by others of even greater size, while the wind, with a velocity of more than 80 miles an hour, unroofed houses and filled the air with flyin debris that killed many.

Secretary Root Appeals for Aid.

Washington, Aug. 13.—The following telegram has been sent out by Secretary Root to the Mayors of all cities of 150,000 inhabitants or more:

"August 11.

"The Governor General of Porto Rico confirmes the report that upon the 8th inst. a hurricane swept over that island, entirely demolishing many of the towns, destroying many lives and reducing, so far as can estimate, not less than 100,000 of the inhabitants to the condition of absolute destitution, without homes or food. Unless immediate and effective relief is given, these unfortunate people will perish of famine.

"Under these conditions the President deems that an appeal should be made to the humanity of the American people. It is an appeal to their patriotism also, for the inhabitants of Porto Rico have freely and gladly submitted themselves to the guardianship of the United States and have voluntarily surrendered the protection of Spain, to which they were formerly entitled, confidently relying upon more generous and beneficient treatment at our hands. The highest consideration of honor and good faith unite with the promptings of humanity to require from the United States a generous response to the demand of Porto Rican distress.

This department has directed the immediate distribution of rations to the sufferers by the army of Porto Rico, so far as it is within the power of the Executive; but in the absence of any appropriation we must rely largely upon private contributions.

"I beg that you will call upon the public-spirited and humane people of your city to take active and immediate measures in this exigency. The Government transport McPherson will be sent directly from the port of New York to Porto Rico on Monday, the 14th inst., to carry all supplies of food which can be obtained. Further transports will be sent at future dates, of which public notice will be given.

"Any committee charged with the raising of funds will receive full information and advice upon communicating with this department.

"ELIHU ROOT,
Secretary of War."

Washington, Aug. 13.—Replies have been received from many cities to Secretary Root's appeal for aid for the homeless and starving tornado sufferers in Porto Rico. The indications are that cash contributions to the amount of upward of $250,000 will be received in time to forward the same to the unfortunate people within the next three days. San Francisco alone will raise $50,000. Many telegraphic money orders have already been received.

Storm Coming This Way.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Reports received by the Weather Bureau indicate that the West Indian tornado will strike the United States coast. Judging from its present path it will centre off Georgia.

It will probably increase in intensity as it passes the Gulf Stream. All ships in Southern ports have been warned not to put out to sea and Northern ships are warned not to sail South.

PLANS FOR CUBAN MILITIA

Gen. Carlos Garcia Wants to Organize a National Guard.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Gen. Carlos Garcia of Cuba was engaged here in the presentation to army officials of plans for the organiztion of a Cuban militia. He had a long conference with Gen. Miles.

The plan presented by Gen. Garcia is to organize several regiments from among the soldiers who fought for Cuban independence into a force which shall constitute a national guard and at the same time perform duties similar to those of the gendarmes of Europe. He thinks the force could be utilized to maintain order and to relieve many of the American soldiers now employed there. It could be classed as a part of the auxiliary force authorized by the last session of congress, but the intention is that it have Cuban officers and be paid out of the Cuban revenue.

So far as he has been able to present the plan to officials in this city, Gen. Garcia says he has received encouragement.

Grounded in the Night.

New Brunswick, N. J., Aug. 13.—One hundred and fifty members of the Washington Club reached here on trolley cars after an exciting experience, the sequel to a moonlight excursion. They started out on the steamer Falcon and in returning grounded on a shoal, a half mile below Sayerville. The boat listed to port and seemed in danger of keeling over altogether. The steam launch Daisy and a number of small boats put off from the shore and after many trips brought all the passengers ashore. E. S. Radel, secretary of the Brunswick Traction Company, drove to Milltown and ordered several trolley cars to convey the wrecked party.

Pursued by the Cannibals.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 13.—The Count Festetics, of Austria, who, with his Countess, has been cruising in southern seas in the yacht Tolna, narrowly escped death at the hands of savages. The Tolna had been visiting the larger of the Solomon Islands, the Count taking many chances to secure photographs of head hunting battles and Cannibal feasts, when the savage models developed sudden and fierce hostility. The Count and his party became suspicious of them just in time and, returning to the yacht, were fortunate in getting a favorable wind. As it was, the canoes of the cannibals pursued them for many miles.

Plunged From Burning Balloon.

Binghamton, Aug. 13.—In the presence of twelve hundred people at Owego, N. Y., David McCabe plunged from a blazing balloon, half a mile in the air, and, clinging to a partly unfolded parachute, landed in the river, slightly burned and badly scared. The mouth of the hot-air balloon was noticed to be smouldering as McCabe cast off. He struggled to free the parachute, but before he succeeded the bag was a mass of flames and had begun to fall. He took a chance jumping into space, and his weight broke the cord holding the parachute.

Clark is en Route to California.

Williamsport, Pa., Aug. 13.—Intelligence came from Oval that Leslie T. Clark, who fooled the Willimsport police into dragging the river for his body, also wrote a letter to a young woman in Nippenose Valley, who refused to marry him, stating that he intended to commit suicide, and mailed it at the same time he posted his letter to Chief Stryker. He is en route to California.

Roosevelt Appoints Delegates.

Albany, Aug. 13.—Gov. Roosevelt has appointed the following delegates to the Conference on Trusts, to be held in Chicago beginning on September 13. Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, Hon. John G. Carlisle, Dr. Albert Shaw, Hon. W. Bourke Cockran, George Gunton, F. B. Thurber and Henry White. It is possible that this list may be added to at a later day.

Spain Locks the Door.

Madrid, Aug. 13—The "Gazette," publishes the verdict of the supreme court-martial, which, in addition to acquitting Generals Toral and Pareja of surrendering Santiago de Cuba without having exhusted all means of defense, orders an additional inquiry to discover the responsibility for the lack of means of defense, which necessitated the capitulation of that place.

Insurance Companies Pay Fines.

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 13.—Sixty eight of the seventy-three ousted insurance companies have paid their fines of $1,000 each. Sunday is the last day for the remaining companies to pay in order to keep from being ousted from the State under the provisions of the anti-trust law, which they can counter to in combining to fix the price of insurance.

Robert L. Walker Bankrupt.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 13.—Robert L. Waker, of Poland, Mahoning County, Ohio, has filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy in the United States District Court here. The liabilities are placed at over $100,000 with no assets. President McKinley was formerly connected with Walker in a metal-stamping business.

To be Treasurer of Philippines.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Major Charles Kilbourne, Paymaster of the Army, has been appointed to duty as Treasurer of the Philippine Islands and the Island of Guam. All moneys of the civil government of the islands will be placed in his hands.

Harriman Party Returns.

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 13.—E. H. Harriman, president of the Chicago and Alton Railroad Company, passed through here on a special train for Chicago with his party of forty scientists, who have been investigating Alaska.

Two More Athletes Coming Home.

London, Aug. 13.—Among the passengers who sailed for New York from Southampton on board the American line steamship New York were W. A. Boal and F. J. Quinlan, the Harvard athletes.

A NOTED CHARACTER

HE WAS A DOCTOR, WHO MYSTERIOUSLY DISAPPEARED IN 1898.

Dr. J. C. Leonard After Many Years of Travel and Adventure in the Far West Has Gone, no One Knows Where.

Dr. J. C. Leonard is missing. Some say that he has left his bleaching bones on the mountain-side, as he himself predicted; some say, "Doc Leonard? Not much! Can't kill him so easily." All agree that Dr. Leonard is the strangest combination of dentist, tramp, paleontologist and queer character that ever befriended a great university.

Dr. Leonard first made himself known to the University of Michigan by inquiring casually of Harrison Soule, its treasurer, through a letter, whether the college had any use for relics and specimens in its museums. Now, the University of Michigan is a great and valuable institution of learning—one of the greatest in the country, but it has not millions of endowment, like Yale and Harvard. Major Soule has no money to waste on specimens he hasn't seen, and he so replied, in more diplomatic phrase, of course. The university has no fund, he said, to pay for such articles. Next Major Soule received a postal card couched in rather less diplomatic phrase than his own, thus:

"So you can't pay the expense, eh? Then go to the devil! I'll pay it myself. My rope is nearly run, and some day I'll turn up missing, and a few years later a few bleached bones will be found among the crags up in the mountains. I want to be remembered somewhere on God's green earth, so kindly accept my gifts, and some day, old cub, perhaps we'll meet. J. C. Leonard."

Pretty soon Major Soule began to receive things, expenses paid, a huge 900-pound cinnamon bear, stuffed, the largest ever killed; an antelope, and rare mining specimens. The collection grew constantly. It now fills two cases in the museum and is considered very valuable. There are Indian relics, shields, axes, bows and arrows, blankets, tepees and minerals of every sort known in the West.

Most pathetic of all is a lockless gun—an old Mississippi rifle with a hammered barrel four feet long—a relic of the saddest tragedy of the plains, the massacre of Lamoile Creek. It was the gun belonging to the young fellow who was butchered by the Indians. His sweetheart had stabbed herself to the heart under a wagon not far away, and he, wounded fatally, hid himself to die in the bushes, first wrenching off the locks and sights of his rifle that the Indians might not use it, says the Chicago Times-Herald. The gun was found many years later by Dr. Leonard and sent to the museum.

Dr. Leonard and Treasurer Soule have never met, but they have struck up quite a friendship by correspondence. Sometimes Dr. Leonard does a trip as a dentist, presumably to replenish his funds. On one such trip he wrote to Major Soule:

"I travel along with two mules, a cart, my dog, a gun, and my tooth pullers, all alone. I manage to stay in each town long enough to pull a couple of barrels of teeth and dicker for some new specimens for the collection, and then move on."

At another time he wrote to Major Soule for his portrait. On receiving it he returned his own, with a letter as follows: "You look about the same kind of a sardine as I am. I send a picture of my friend." The last time Dr. Leonard was heard from was in the fall of 1898. He was starting upon an expedition through the desert regions of Arizona to investigate the remains of cliff dwellers there and in old Mexico. He has never been heard from since.

The "Aunt" Was Mythical.

"Good morning, madam. My aunt, Mrs. ——— sent me over to borrow a dollar. She wants to pay her egg man, but is unable to make the change. She buys eggs of a farmer, you know. They are so much fresher than store eggs, even if you do have to pay a little more.

"My aunt sent me here because, as she says, you are so generous about doing small favors. I told her you would not know me, and I hated to come, for I am seldom in town, but she said it would be all right—just to mention her name. You are such a good, kind friend and always willing to oblige.

"Yes, thank you, a dollar was what she wanted. She will return it at once, and you are so kind."

This prettily worded speech has been going the rounds in Evanston, says the Chicago Chronicle. Nearly every woman in town has played the aunt and as many again in the kind neighbor lady. The nephew has in every case been the same dapper young man of twenty-two years, who paid pretty compliments in a soft, rich voice, and looked altogether trustworthy. So, too, he might have been had he not immediately forgotten his aunty and the good kind lady with the dollar jingling in his pocket. And no one would have been the wiser had not the neighbor, in a moment of wondering, as to why the aunt made change in dollars with her egg man, asked casually if the aunt bought eggs by the gross.

Australia's Population Increasing.

All the people in all the Australasian colonies of Great Britian totaled up 4,476, 995 in 1898—considerably less than the population of New York state. New South Wales is credited with 1,346,240 inhabitants; Victoria, 1,175,490; Queensland, 498,533; South Australia, 367,800; Western Australia, 168,129; Tasmania, 177,340; New Zealand, 743,463. The total increase since the last census, taken in 1891, is 667,160. Western Australia shows the greatest increase, having gained 23,773 inhabitants, thanks to the excitement incident to the development of the gold mines.

CORWIN DISCONCERTED

Impression Is That He Was Never Bested By an Antagonist.

"The general impression is," said the Professor, "that Corwin was never disconcerted by any antagonist. But there was an old story current in Central Ohio thirty-five or forty years ago, showing the contrary. Soon after Antioch College, at Yellow Springs, began to achieve a reputation under Horace Mann, there was an outbreak among the students. In attempting to quiet the disturbance one of the professors was roughly handled. The professor insisted that the ring-leader in the hazing frolic threatened him with a heavy cane, and finally struck him. The student was arrested on complaint of the officers of the college, who were represented in court by 'Tom' Corwin.

"Corwin's great reputation and his manner took nearly all the fight out of the students, who were standing by the parties under arrest. Corwin was carrying all before him, making witnesses say almost what he wanted them to say, when one of the principal offenders took the stand. This young fellow admitted that the professor was threatened with canes, but denied that he was struck by any one. He said, in fact, the boys only wanted to scare the professor, and had no thought of hurting him. The witness was a quiet, athletic fellow, and as he made this explanation he smiled at the exaggerated look of amazement on Corwin's face.

"Corwin made the witness show how the canes were flourished about the professor's head, and questioned him persistently as to how close the canes went to the professor's nose. He began with five inches and forced the witness to say that the distance was not greater than three inches, two inches, one inch. Then, triumphant, he took the cane from the hand of the witness, and, flourishing it about the young fellow's head, so close as to make him dodge, thundered: 'If a man should flourish a heavy cane about your head like this, and this, and this, within an inch of your nose or ear or hair, what would you think, what would you do, sir?' The student, who had been dodging this way and that, much to the amusement of the spectators, suddenly sprang to his feet, and imitating Corwin's intense, dramatic manner, and his humorous voice, said 'I would welcome him, sir, with bloody hands to a hospitable grave.' This application of the famous sentence in Corwin's speech on the Mexican War brought down the house and threw the great orator off his base."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Bird Missionaries.

An interesting account is given by a traveler of the moralizing effect on French boys of the company of song birds, says the Chicago Recor. The traveler was shown over the industrial school of Mettray, near Tours, by its founder, a man of most subtle penetration. His idea was to moralize the juvenile malefactors of towns by employing them at farm labor. Connected with the industrial school was a chalet in an inclosed garden. This was reserved for boys belonging to rich families who had been handed over to the founder for penal discipline. He was the only person at the chalet who knew their names.

The chalet was full, and all the cases were very bad. The first stage of discipline was solitary confinement and lasted six months. The whole course lasted eighteen months, and after the solitary period recreations, such as riding, gymnastics, boating and skating were allowed. The visitor was taken into the cells of these "sinded" prisoners. Noticing in some of them birds in cages, he asked what they meant.

They meant that when a boy gave signs of deep repentance he was allowed the companionship of a bird. If he relapsed the bird was taken away, and a fearful punishment it was. But if he improved he was given drawing materials and allowed to sketch the bird. He was also given a flute and a musical warbler was sent every day to play that instrument beside an open sliding panel in the door The bird picked up the airs. The captive tried to pick them up, too, and thus had an innocent amusement. Presently mowers and water colors were given to the boy. The final stage of the solitary period was gardening. It was always found salutary.

"My Little Girl."

"My little girl," began the man with a fondly fatherly manner.

Two men among the listeners got up and went out.

"My little girl," repeated the man, as he waited for the others to settle down again, when three arose and went out softly.

Only one man remained by the stove, and he had a lame foot.

"My little girl," said the man for the third time, in a hurt tone, but with a fine determination, "is so cute and says such unexpected things that we sometimes wonder if it is good for her to be so bright. I don't think we are at all prejudiced because she is our child, but, really, she is the smartest child for her age I ever saw."

The man with the lame foot nodded, as if the statement were similar to others he had heard.

"Why, do you know," continued the man, "that only this morning as she was studying her lessons, which she is slow about learning, as all bright children are, she laid aside her book with an air of having had enough of it, and, turning to her mother, she said: 'Say, mamma, why isn't children born educated?' Now, what do you think of that?" and the man with a lame foot laughed right out and asked how old the child was.—The Detroit Free Press.

"Hassayamps."

The elevated altitude and pure air of Arizona and New-Mexico seem to affect the minds and imaginations of some men. Down in Arizona there is a little stream known as the Hassayampa River, and it is said that if any one drinks of the water he is forever after incapable of telling the truth. The victims of this mysterious stream are known as "Hassayamps," and there are a good many of them in this part of the country. Some have mines to sell.—Flagstaff (Ariz.) correspondence of The Chicago Record.

SOME WILD HORSES

TWO STALLIONS FIGHT A DUEL, AND SOME HERDS HAVE PITCH BATTLES.

Some of Them Show Characteristics That Are Almost Human—They Have Leaders, and in Their Battles Show Fine Military Tactics.

William Jameson Reid, who spent several years in exploring China and Thibet, gives the following account of the wi ' horses of Thibet in his book "Through Unexplored Asia," which is to be issued shortly:

"Wild horses, called by the Sifanese Dzerlikadu, are very numerous in the country to the eastward of Sukulat at the base of the mountain ranges. They are generally in large herds, very shy, and when frightened continue their flight for days. They are never hunted, owing to the difficulties of the chase, but are captured by strong nooses attached to sunken stakes, distributed in the districts which they are known to frequent, in this manner insuring their capture without injury. These horses usually roam over the country in groups of fifty to a hundred. Each lot of mares is led by a stallion, the size of whose family depends on his age, strength and courage, his individual qualities keeping his herd together. Over this he maintains the most strict watchfulness, for if he descries intruders from other herds in his ranks he rushes to the encounter and tries in every way by biting and kicking to drive them off. During the breeding season the males are exceptionally aggressive, and encounters among themselves, and even attacks on human beings, are of frequent occurrence,

We rode for some hours, until we had reached a spot whence we could overlook the plain where we were informed the astonishing wonders of which we had been told might be performed. Suddenly upon the night air resounded a bugle-curdling neigh, as clear as a bugle call; and immediately the herd stopped feeding, and stood with heads erect, as a mighty army at the call of its leader. Another prolonged neigh, pitched in a somewhat higher key, and like a whirlwind, the whole herd bolted up the valley, as orderly and regularly as the finest disciplined army, with the three or four who seemed to be the leaders symmetrically arranged ahead of the main body, and flanking and rear detachments posted with studious exactness.

"On reaching the head of the plain once more they came to a halt and grazing was resumed. Our attention had been so drawn in following the action of this herd that we had not noticed that another fully as large had come from far down the valley and had installed themselves on the feeding grounds just vacated. The scene in front was now all-engaging; cold and fatigue were alike forgotten in the enthralling interest of the moment. For half an hour both herds cropped the short grass in silence, when a shrill neigh from the group nearest to us attracted our attention in their direction. They had all stopped feeding, and stood restless and fearful as if detecting the approach of some terrible enemy. Suddenly from out the compactly gathered mass sprang a gigantic stallion, who, after pawing the earth and meanwhile neighing fiercely, proceeded at a gallop a full half mile up the valley, stopping every few hundred feet to repeat his bellicose neighing. Following his movements we now saw that another animal was galloping down in a similar manner from the other herd, doubtless to accept the challenge. The newcomer was a magnificent snow-white, and, with the clear light of the moon shining upon him, he presented a gigantic appearance when contrasted with his smaller antagonist. When within a quarter of a mile of each other the two beasts came to another halt and stood facing their respective herds, pawing the ground and neighing fiercely, bending their shapely necks much in the manner of two actors in sword combat making the preliminary flourish previous to deadly action.

"This overture lasted for fully fifteen minutes, when with startling suddenness both animals leaped around and rushed at each other with the velocity of well-aimed projectiles. Nearer and nearer they came in their mad, onward career, and we were waiting the moment when the two grand beasts must come together with tremendous force. But, no! for when within twenty feet of each other they came back on their haunches, and eyed each other cautiously for a moment, as if awaiting the necessary opening. And then, with one last defiant neigh at each other they leaped to the encounter.

"To describe the events of the next ten minutes would require pages of hyperbole to give in any measure a faint idea of the supreme grandeur and weirdness of this herculean struggle between two giants. They rushed at each other time and time again like immense catapults; they fought with tooth and hoof. The two beasts could be seen rearing in the air, locked together like two wrestlers their teeth tearing each other and their great hoofs relentlessly kicking in all directions with the force of pile-drivers. Both animals were tiring perceptibly, when in an instant all was over. A sharp rally and then the ghostly form of the big white stallion rose alone, and on the ground lay the prostrate body of his antagonist. The victor contented himself with giving utterance to short, exultant neighs, and ever and anon kicking the body of his defeated foe."

Negroes Large Cotton Industry.

What is probably the largest commercial enterprise organized and owned by American negroes has just been established by prominent colored men of Mississippi. They have obtained a charter, incorporating the Mississippi Cotton Manufacturing Company, with a capital stock of $200,000 and privilege of increasing. A site for the company's mill has been chosen at Jackson, and the work of erecting it will begin as soon as proper plans are adopted. The officers of the company are: President, James Hill, Register of the State Land Office in Jackson; vice-president, E. W. Lampton; treasurer, Smith Robinson, and secretary, S. D. Redmond.

Three Texans live a hermit life, having vowed never to look upon the face of a woman.

Mrs. Lily Heckert, of Bartlesville, Cherokee Nat., Ind. Ty., writes:

"I had prolapsus, or female weakness, so badly that at times I could not be turned in bed. I suffered from palpitation of the heart, I would often faint away, and it seemed as if I never would recover, had sick headache nearly all the time, and also had St. Vitus's Dance. At the commencement of the monthly period the misery would be so great that I would be nearly crazy I had doctored with five different physicians, but they did me no good. One of these doctors, of forty years' experience, said to me, 'I can't do you any good, so why not try Dr. R. V. Pierce's Favorite Prescription?' I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce and described my troubles. He wrote me a nice fatherly, kind letter in reply, and I followed his advice.

"Life is a pleasure to me now, instead of a burden as it was before. Three of my neighbor women have used Dr. Pierce's medicines and it has helped them all. I will take no other medicine but Dr. Pierce's and I recommend it to all my friends. The 'Favorite Prescription' helped me so much I always keep it in the house. I also have the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser and think it is a great book. I am willing to answer any letters of inquiry if stamps are enclosed for reply."

Her Neighbors.

Dr. R. V. Pierce is and for over thirty years has been, chief consulting physician at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. Thousands of women have written to him describing their symptoms, and, on following the advice he gives freely, have become well, strong and happy. Many sensitively modest women write to Dr. Pierce and so avoid the disagreeable questioning, examinations and local treatment so generally insisted upon by physicians. Dr. Pierce's medicines cure you in the privacy of your home, and Mrs. Heckert's case is only one of thousands that have been cured after the doctors failed.

THE HERALD.

A RECORD DAY.

Sunday was a perfect summer day and thousands of cityites and their country cousins enjoyed a day's recreation and outing. All the morning trains came in heavily loaded especially those from Dover and on the Concord branch. Of these the greater part went to York Beach and the Shoals although quite a few went to Hampton beach. Newcastle and Kittery Point had their share of picnic and pleasure parties and the river boats were well patronized.

It was the banner day for the local electric road and from early morning until late at night every car was crowded. There were three of the big open cars in operation as well as all the former closed ones. It is estimated that fully one thousand people were at Sagamore grove in the afternoon at one time, but this does not mean all that the road carried for every car was loaded both ways. Superintendent Howard handled the large crowd with out a hitch.

THE SALE OF THE MIRAMAR AT LITTLE BOAR'S HEAD.

The sale of the "Miramar" cottage at Little Boar's Head on Saturday afternoon attracted a large number of prominent New Hampshire people and the bidding was lively. The property was finally knocked down to Captain William H. Jacques at $14,550. Captain Jacques secures a right to occupy the same with Mrs. Hale during her life when it reverts to him. Senator Chandler was present and was one of the bidders.

MISS HARRIS AT GREENACRE.

At four o'clock this afternoon, Miss Estelle Harris of New York, the pupil and protege of the noted soprano, Miss Emma Thursby, will give a recital at Greenacre, in the Eirenion, for the benefit of the Greenacre assembly. Miss Harris by her recital at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, in May, made one of the sensations of the year. Her voice, with its purity and velvety smoothness, reproduces that of Miss Thursby in a marvelous degree.

BETTER PRICES FOR SHOES IN PROSPECT.

A shoe salesman who was in town last Saturday said that while better prices would soon be paid for shoes from the factory, the question would in a way be avoided by both buyer and seller. The buyer would ask for a shoe to sell at a certain price and the seller would go to work and give him the best shoe that he could for the price. This really means either getting the same price for a poorer shoe or getting a bigger price for the same shoe, according to the last season's figures and last season's shoes.

STILL ANOTHER ARRESTED.

Another evader of car fare on the Boston & Maine was arrested two or three days ago. His name is John Lynch and he boarded an express here for Boston. When the conductor asked for his fare, he pointed to a tourist a short distance up the aisle and said "He'll pay it." The tourist thought otherwise, and the conductor turned Lynch over to Marshal Hart in Salem depot. Fined $5.

POLICE NEWS.

Cora Whalley was taken from a house on Maplewood avenue Sunday evening by Officer Hilton and locked up on an old charge. A short time ago she was given a sentence of four months it Brentwood, sentence being suspended providing she leave town for one year. Failing to keep her promise the mittimus will be issued and she will now serve out the sentence.

SAD, SAD NEWS!

The management of the Portsmouth electric railway has decided not to give any passes to newspaper editors, proprietors or reporters.—Manchester Union, Portsmouth letter.

WHO SAID SO?

Portsmouth business men will hold a merchant's day at Hampton beach Saturday, Aug. 19.—Manchester Union, Exeter letter.

Flatulence is cured by BEECHAM'S PILLS.

SPEAKER REED RETURNS.

Keeps His Own Counsel and Declines to Talk On Politics.

Hon. Thomas B. Reed, speaker of the House of Representatives, accompanied by his wife and daughter, passed through this city on the Bar Harbor express, Sunday forenoon, for his home in Portland, Me. They reached New York from Europe on Saturday and arrived in Boston Saturday evening, remaining at Hotel Touraine until Sunday morning. During the ten minutes' stay at this station Mr. Reed came out of the cars and walked up and down the station and was recognized and cordially greeted by several persons. He presented the picture of health and evidently had enjoyed his trip abroad.

To a reporter who suggested to Mr. Reed that his return at this time was interpreted by many persons to mean that he had come back to look after his fences with a view to again running for congress, he said that it was the intense heat of London which had hastened his return.

The speaker was asked to deny a report which he was assured came from a credible source, to the effect that Gen. David B. Henderson of Iowa, who since it was announced that Mr. Reed intended to retire from congress has been generally regarded as the man almost sure to succeed him, had written to Mr. Reed with reference to the make-up of the committees of the next congress, and that the latter had failed to reply to it. The speaker looked wise at this, and no end of querying in almost every form imaginable would elicit a definite statement on this matter.

It was also pointed out to him that this report is regarded as well founded, and that it is taken as significant of an intention on his part to again be a candidate for congress from his old district, but he heeded not the invitation thus held out to make a statement of his exact position.

On the whole Speaker Reed is evidently keeping his own counsel these days, and while rumors are flying thick and fast he is not disposed either to affirm or deny any of them, however well founded they appear to be.

As to politics generally and incidents which have attracted public attention during his sojourn abroad, he professed only a meagre knowledge, and said he could hardly be expected to discuss them until he had been more fully informed.

The only subject at all upon which the speaker would talk pertains to his health. As to that he said he never felt better, and expressed the belief that the trip had done him a world of good. "I have secured what I sought after," he said, "namely, rest and recreation, and now I am ready for business."

Mr. Reed certainly did look all that he claimed for himself. With a liberal coat of tan, a bright eye and a firm step, he impressed one as full of vigor and not at all lacking in good nature.

CAR OFF THE IRON.

Derailed On The Square This Morning.

Car 21 of the Portsmouth electric railway went off the rails where the loop line curves from Market street into the square, about 7 30 this morning and was restored to the iron after about an hour's work. The car was headed for the square and had just cleared the crossing by Hutchinson's, so the pedestrians were not bothered.

While the man who came down from the car barn to boss the job of righting the car was gone down Market street after tools, John Mott picked up a jack lying handy and put the front wheels of the rear set back on the rails. It was the opinion among the bystanders that he would have had the whole car where it belonged, if the boss hadn't returned.

GREENACRE.

A series of lectures on "Psychology" under the management of Dr. R. Osgood Mason of New York city was opened Sunday. The first address was by Prof. Egbert Morse Chesley of Boston, who spoke upon "The Ideal Philosophy of Leibnitz." The program for this week will be: Tuesday, 3.15 p. m., Dr. R. Osgood Mason of New York city, "The New Therapeutics;" Thursday, 3.15 p. m., Dr. Smith Baker of Utica, N. Y., "The Human Brain and Its Needs;" Saturday, 3.15 p. m., Prof. Lyman C. Newell, Ph. D., State Normal school, Lowell, "Some Psychological Aspects of Laboratory Science."

Mrs. Bartlett is improving slowly, and it is feared that many weeks will elapse before she will be fully restored to health.

WHOLESALE RAIDS.

Hotel and Roadhouse Keepers Visited In Strafford County.

County Solicitor W. W. Scott created a sensation in Dover Saturday night and Sunday by starting a wholesale raid on all the roadhouses in Strafford county, and several hotels. Saturday night he placed upward of a dozen warrants in the hands of Sheriff James E. Hayes, who, assisted by his deputies and the local police, immediately executed them.

The following places in Dover and vicinity were visited, and the biggest grist of hotel proprietors and roadhouse keepers that have ever appeared at one time in police court were booked at the police station: Cushing House, Dan Hayes, proprietor, beer found; Waverly House, George Garland, proprietor, beer found; Chase's Hotel, Melvin Brewer, whiskey and beer found; Half-Way House, Fred Wentworth, proprietor, beer found; Wesley House, Herry Titus, beer found; the Hermitage, Thomas Linskey, proprietor, whiskey and beer found; Heath House, Adolphus Levi, proprietor, beer found; It is the first raid of the kind that has ever occurred in Strafford county by order of a county solicitor, and there is much speculation as to what is behind it.

HOME FROM THEIR CRUISE.

The yachts Eolus, Captain Holman, and Annie B., Captain Bartlett, of the Portsmouth Yacht club, arrived back from a week's cruise to Marblehead, on Sunday. The boys are brown as berries and report a most delightful trip.
